PROJECT HANDLED:

Designing of Robotic Borewell Rescue Operation:

In the past years, the reported rates of children falling inside the bore-well have increased considerably. Where in most cases rescue operations take place by digging the pits parallel to an existing one consuming both time and manpower, others leave the children in for feiting their lives. The current method used has very little chance of rescuing the child out of the bore-well safely, Which is why this robotic system promises to target the current situation. The project implies a design of arm gripper using gear material placed inwards to grip the child and pull him out of the bore-well safely
