Project

Restaurant Table Booking System (Standalone Application)

Description – This System is a standalone application that facilitates online table reservations for users. The system allows users to register and login, after which they can proceed to book tables for either single or couple seating. User can also check the availability of tables before making a reservation. In case all tables are booked, user have the option to wait for a table become available. The system assigns a token number to the waiting user, and once a table becomes vacant, a message is sent to the user based on their token number. Additionally, the application enables users to order food and pay bills within the system, providing a seamless dining experience.
